Capitalist; b. Oak Park, Chicago, Ill., Nov. 25, 1871; s. Joseph Edward and Mary A. R. (Amerman) MacNeill of Phila. Mr. MacNeill's business career began at the age of nineteen, when he was appt'd cashier of a smelting company in Colorado. Since that time he has devoted himself chiefly to ore reduction and to late copper developments, and has allied himself with many corporations engaged in mining and smelting operations throughout the country. His executive ability and knowledge of the smelting and mining industries were recognized at an early period. The Utah Copper Co. of Salt Lake City was incorporated in 1904; he joined the board as president, being then hardly thirty-three years of age, and he still continues to occupy that position, his associates being among the most prominent bankers and mining engineers. It is largely through his careful direction of the company's affairs that the corporation has reached the high place it occupies among successful manufacturing mining undertakings, and is considered the greatest single copper producer in the world. Mr. MacNeill has also been president of the Chino Copper Co. of Santa Rita, N. M., since the formation of the company in 1909, also one of the great copper mines. Besides this he has many railroad interests and is president of the Bingham & Garfield Railroad of Utah. He is associated with several other corporations in the capacity of either officer or director, including the Ray Consolidated Copper Co., Nevada Consolidated Copper Co., of Ely, Nev., two of the most important copper mines of the world, the Nevada Northern Railway Co., and the Granite Gold Mining Co. of Colorado, and the Cresson Gold Mining Co. In addition to his connection with these mining and r'y interests he fills executive positions with several extensive financial and commercial institutions. S. to writings of Herbert Spencer (e.g.), on maintenance of justice as chief, if not sole legitimate domestic function of Gov't wielding coercive power of whole body of citizens; in opposition to Peace-Democrats, held that, after Fort Sumter, war was unavoidable for resisting disruption of Union and subversion of its Constitution; opposed exorbitance of exec. power, usurpings of ungranted power as likewise its subversion; opposed warping Custom House taxation, touching all, into profit machines of a few; opposed Federal income taxing as direct taxes faithless to an original compromise, and false to actual terms of the Constitution; opposed greenbacks (as ever-injurious substitute for money) also doubling the cost of the war then waging, and repeating our own calamitous colonial experience which had caused the shaping of the Constitution to make such issues lawless; opposed negro suffrage, and impeachment of Pres. Johnson. Obstructing a partisan misuse for partisan advantage of issues so momentous, he urged and supported procedures consummated in the Washington Treaty, Geneva Arbitration, Alabama Award, deeming explicit avowal of regret from the source over the seas of our greatest injury to be the best ending of old antagonisms and only beginning of subsequent peace. Special envoy sent by Pres. Cleveland, 1885, to gov'ts of Great Britain, France, Germany, and after conferences with Prince Bismarck, with MM. Freycinet, Carnot, and with Cernuschi, the classic authority upon internat. bimetallism, and with Mr. Goschen, Lord Iddesleigh and Mr. Gladstone, ascertained and advised the President that resumption of free bimetallic coinage by any European power was conditioned sine qua non upon British coöperation, which neither Tory nor Liberal ministries were prepared for (Mr. Gladstone doubtless preferring even then the Indian mints' closure to continuing their free coinage of silver) and that our own U. S. Treasury purchases of silver should cease. Author: A Letter to Abraham Lincoln, 1864; The Presidential Counts, 1877; A Secret Chapter of Political History, 1878; Memoir of Alex. G. City, 1880, and beame identified with development of electric ght industry in employ of the Edison Co., he U. S. Elec. Illuminating Co., Fuller f'g Co., etc.; returned to Baltimore, 1884, devote attention to developing his inentions in electric signalling, railroading, ontrolling apparatus and illumination; mong these being his well-known regulating ocket, which was the first practicable device for "turning down" or controlling the light or candle power of incandescent electric lamps without the use of wasteful resistance, thereby placing the incandescent lamp on a par with gas. Also inventor and patentee of the modern high tension, stepdown, alternating current or "converter" electric railway system, by which the limitations and restrictions of the 600-volt trolley systems were for the first time successfully overcome. The underlying principle of electric generation, transmission, conversion and distribution disclosed in these patents made possible the various rapid transit elevated, subway and tunnel lines now operating in the large cities, and the electrification of suburban and long distance steam railways in the U. S. and other countries. His basic patents on this invention were finally adjudged in his favor after nearly 14 years' litigation. They were subsequently purchased by the Westinghouse Elec. and Mf'g Co. in 1903, on behalf of itself and the General Electric Co., then operating under the so-called Patent Pool arrangement. Has taken out over 200 patents on various pioneer inventions, many of which are in extensive use, some of the more notable being his method of electrically welding track rails, new processes of riveting by electricity, underground electric railway conduit or sub-trolley system now used in New York and other large cities; methods and appliances for electric heating and cooking, telephone and telephonograph systems and apparatus, etc. Among others in general use are his basic patents on electric elevator controllers, etc., covering the method and apparatus adopted by the Otis Elevator Co. and others on their electric elevators, and for general motor starting and braking purposes. Invented and perfected an entirely new and very effective telephone system and apparatus, the patents on which were taken over by the United States Automatic Telephone Co. of N. Y. In 1912, following the sinking of the "Titanic" by collision with an iceberg, he applied for patents on a novel sound-detecting and registering system designed to prevent such disasters in future, and which also provides other important safeguards against the dangers of navigation. City, 1894, but declined nomination; appt'd 1893, by Mayor Grant, Park Com'r of N. Y. City; made many improvements during incumbency of office. By gaining intimate knowledge of conditions, mainly through park restaurants selling poor quality of milk for 5 cents a glass, started dispensing of pasteurized milk at 1 cent a glass; estab'd stations, gradually covering all city districts for distribution, at a nominal price, of pasteurized, modified milk in nursing bottles, also by the glass. Resulted in enormous reduction of children's death rate, as testified by N. Y. Health Board statistics. Gave installations for pasteurizing milk to Washington, Phila., Chicago, St. Louis, Wilkes-Barre. Supplied 5 stations of Diet Dispensary in B'klyn, N. Y., in 1896. Gave installations also to foreign cities of Karlsruhe, Munich, Eberswalde (near Berlin), Dublin, and Sandhausen (near Heidelberg). To the latter town supplied free milk for a year and succeeded in reducing death rate of children under two years to less than half of previous record. All this propaganda culminated in world-wide adoption by physicians and scientists of pasteurization of milk. Many cities in the U. S. have passed laws enforcing pasteurization of entire milk supply. Appeared before California Legislature in 1915 and succeeded in having enacted a law for pasteurization of all milk, and against sale of milk from tubercular cows. While pres't of B'd of Health of N. Also sold bread and groceries, distributing enormous quantities, at less than cost. During these two winters maintained depots for distribution of coal at less than cost. During Spanish-Am. war, 1898, donated ice plant and distilled water plant to Santiago de Cuba, preventing much sickness among the soldiers. Through philanthropic work of more than three decades, prevalent thought always the saving of human life by prevention,—beginning with small cottage given Trudeau Sanitarium, Saranac Lake, in 1886, to conception of a "Preventorium" against tuberculosis, Farmingdale, N. J., in 1909. In winter 1915-16 built additional cottage for Consumptives' Relief Ass'n in Duarte, Calif. In 1909 donated a large cargo of food, clothing and medicines to Messina earthquake sufferers, in charge of personal medical representative. Appt'd by Pres. Taft sole U. S. Delegate to Internat'l Congress for Protection of Infants, Berlin, 1911; also delegate to Tuberculosis Congress, Rome, Italy, 1912. Established, 1912, in Jerusalem, Palestine, a health bureau, which has been especially successful in combating malaria and eye diseases. At same time opened soup kitchens in Jerusalem for free distribution of meals to those rendered destitute by Balkan War, 1913. Also established Pasteur Inst. for treatment of rabies at Jerusalem. (Out Patient Dep't), N. Y. Skin and Cancer Hosp., Bloomingdale Clinic (founder), N. Y. County Med. Soc., Med. Soc. of Greater N. Y., West End Med. Soc. Inventor of Electrophone, electric device to enable the deaf to hear. Made special study of value of electricity and magnetism in medicine, and has written various papers on the subject. When radium was discovered was among the first in this country to procure some of it and investigate its properties; wrote small volume on Radium and Radioactivity. Authority on med. use of electricity, magnetism and radium. In N. Y. Medical Times (Feb., 1908) appeared an article by Dr. Tracy on the "Influence of High Frequency Electric Currents in Retarding Senility." In this article he stated "that a man is as old as his arteries," in other words arterio-sclerosis accompanied with high blood pressure is the starting point of old age, irrespective of the number of years the patient may have lived. Arterio-sclerosis is caused by a vitiated blood, due to an auto infection, in which waste materials float in the blood stream and injure the coats of the arteries. This waste material is usually due to over eating, excessive drinking of alcoholic beverages and to auto-intoxication, where the chemistry of the system is unbalanced, and the liver, kidney and intestinal functions do not perform their normal action. Dr. Tracy said that while old age cannot be prevented, we have agencies at our disposal which will materially assist in retarding it or at least making its symptoms more comfortable. These modalities are high frequency electric current, diet and hygiene. The physiological effects of the high frequency current is to produce mechanical effects on the tissue, a slightly increased heat in the body and the formation of bone. The constitutional effect is to lower the blood pressure, increase combustion through the lungs and stimulate the eliminative processes. In the treatment of a senescent patient, he is placed on a condenser couch, or chair, and without removal of the clothing, he is subject to the bombardment of millions of electrical oscillations per second. In twenty minutes his blood pressure will be reduced from ten to fifteen millimeters. After a few weeks the blood pressure is materially reduced, and the arteries made more elastic. Republican. Mem. In 1881-82, he worked at the bench in Taylor's Saw Mill and Desvignes' Boat Building Yard, Chertsey in Surrey, but owing to the illness of his father returned to London, and in the fall of 1882 entered the firm of Vizetelly & Co., publishers, where he served as apprentice under George W. Redway. His knowledge as a practical printer he obtained from his father and James Wade, both members of the craft. On the withdrawal of George W. Redway (1886) assumed the management of the wholesale and export department of the firm — a position he held until Feb., 1891. During this time, he urged the publication of a translation of Fedor Dostoieffsky's Crime and Punishment, which was one of the first translations from the Russian published by his firm. He assisted also in translating and passing of various books through the press. Among the men and women whom he met during this connection were: George Moore, F. Com. of the North Road Cycling Club, and its delegate on the Nat'l Cyclists' Union of Great Britain. From 1880 to 1890 he contributed miscellaneous articles on cycling to The Cyclist, Coventry, and Wheeling, London. Owing to the prosecution of his father for the publication of translations of the works of Gustave Flaubert, Theophile Gautier, Guy De Maupassant, Alphonse Daudet and Emile Zola, and the heavy losses entailed thereby, he left the business in the hands of his elder half-brother, Arthur (d. Apr., 1916), and sailed for N. Y. City, Feb. 22, 1891. Arrived in N. Y., 1891, a member of the editorial staff of the Funk & Wagnalls Co. since 1891, ass't editor of the Standard Dictionary, 1891-95; associate editor of same new edition, 1903; managing editor, 1906; managing editor Funk & Wagnalls' New Standard Dictionary, 1908-13; editor, 1913 — associate editor of the Home and Country Magazine, 1893; one of the editors of Hoyt's Cyclopedia of Practical Quotations, 1896; one
